Disciplined agile teams work closely with their stakeholders throughout the Construction phase, focusing on performing the highest value work as defined by their stakeholders. Your aim during the Construction phase is to produce a consumable solution which provides business value to your organization and which meets or exceeds the minimum required functionality to justify the cost of deploying it.